“ Bob, thank you for the many happy memories we shared together. You made the best apple pancakes, you put special shells on the beach for me to find, you took me on adventures in your boat, and you made me laugh. I hope you and your family are at peace.

“ Uncle Bob was quite the wisecracker and often teased, but he was also complimentary and could be an old softie. He was one of the first to tell me that I was a talented writer and always encouraged me to write more. I remember that to this day when I need an extra boost of confidence while writing. He told each of us separately that we were his favorite niece, which caused quite a rivalry among his nieces, but it was all in good fun. He will always be remembered for his sly smile and big soft heart. Sending love and prayers for peaceful hearts and minds to Aunt Shirley and all of the family. XOX

“Stubborn just like your mother, that’s what you are. You know that?” Papa would always say that to me when I didn’t want to go to bed at 7 pm. I thought Papa went to bed and woke-up too early.

I wasn’t always a breeze to babysit. I once tried to stick my finger up the dog’s butt and when Papa had the audacity to prevent me, I threw a tantrum. After an evening of these outbursts, I picked up a book and hurled it at Papa’s head. The corner hit him right in the forehead. Then I looked him dead in the eye, and said, “It was a good day today, huh Papa?” He said something along the lines of, "Yeah...GREAT day, Kaila!"

Most days were good days with Papa though. We never had to do anything extravagant to have fun together. My favorite memories with him are fishing, watching the boats go by from his dock, him teaching me to ride a bike, and going to tag sales. We really loved going to tag sales. The only incentive he could use to drag me to church was the promise that afterward we could go to a tag sale and I could pick out a toy. He, of course, would end up buying more clocks.

I always felt very aware of the passing of time when I stayed with my grandparents. I believe anyone who visited there did, the house was filled with synchronized, loudly-ticking clocks! One clock, in particular, was my grandfather’s favorite, the Black Forest cuckoo clock cottage, gifted by my parents. At the top of the hour, my grandpa would hurry me to the living room to watch. “Look, look!” he’d say. The music would begin and the figurine men would raise their beer steins up and down, while the man on the left gets his noodle bruised by his wife’s rolling pin. The waterwheel turns, the dancers would revolve. When it ended we both would applaud the clock’s performance.

I’m sorry Papa that we ran out of time, but I will always cherish the beautiful memories I have with you. You taught me to enjoy little moments, to watch the boats, and to never waste time on things that don’t bring me happiness.

And to that I say, it was a good life you had, huh Papa?

Love,

Kaila

“ Bob could be a grizzly bear sometimes, but he had a great heart! He was sentimental, romantic, generous, funny, intelligent, and loving. I remember how he cried when I sang. I remember how he "lifted me up" when I had lost my job and I was feeling really low and not worthwhile. I remember how much he helped my Mom with her condo. He was a great boat captain. I loved his witty, somewhat sarcastic, sense of humour. I loved him very much and will miss him dearly. Rest in peace Bob. You have the angels singing for you now.
